PRICE $2.00.

N the compilation of this Directory—the second in the series—the plan adopted last year has been generally followed, but a desire to enchance the value of the book for reference has prompted the introduction of several additional features. The List of Streets is arranged to show, under each title, the relative location of all intersecting streets; and appended to the alphabetical directory of residents will be found a Street List of Householders—this being a reprint of the specially starred names in the general directory, arranged in the order of the house numbers on each street.

The official house numbers assigned by the town engineer to every 25 feet of street frontage (except in the thickly settled districts, where a number is given to every 12½ feet), are given in connection with the names of residents, whether appearing upon the buildings on not. The Directory may thus be taken as a guide by householders who may hereafter determine to adopt numbers, and at the same time will indicate to strangers the relative location of a house, even where street numbers are entirely wanting.

The total number of names in the Directory is 6576, which includes the names of 274 persons who have died or removed from the town during the year. Out of the total names recorded, about 3000 are householders (heads of families) and are thus indicated by a special star ().

SPENCER'S Brookline Directory

FOR 1895-6.

- It is a Directory FOR Brookline, supported by business men of Brookline, and printed and published in Brookline—distinctively a Brookline enterprise.
- It gives the HOUSE NUMBERS of residences on all streets embraced in the official Numbering Plans of the town, and affords the only means of ascertaining the correct numbers, outside the Town Hall.
- It indicates the names of householders by its own original method in the general directory, and groups them in the order of residence, in a "Street List of Householders."
- It contains many original features, including an historical sketch of Brookline, a concise statement of the town's financial condition, the wealth and population of the Metropolitan district, and the town's vote in local and state elections.
- It contains the ONLY complete list of Streets (public and private), the locations of which are indicated by the official street numbers.
- It contains the latest list of Blocks, Buildings and Halls, published in connection with official street numbers.

It contains the only authentic list of Names of Private Estates.

It contains illustrations of churches and public buildings.

COMPILER, PRINTER AND PUBLISHER.

Brookline, as an independent township, is 190 years old, having been set off from Boston and incorporated in 1705. The "Greater Boston," in its extensions of territory, has so nearly surrounded Brookline as to leave but a boundary of two and a half miles around the westerly corner, where it is touched by the city of Newton. The town is about four and a half miles long and an average of two miles wide, and contains 4,358 acres, about 3,750 acres being taxable. Brookline is in Norfolk County, and is the first municipality of the county in wealth and the second in population. It is also the wealthiest town in the Commonwealth, its assessed valuation being over $68,000,000, with a population of 16,159. It is isolated from the rest of the county, being bounded on three sides by Suffolk County (Boston), and on the rest of its border by Middlesex County (Newton). Its cross-town thoroughfares extend from Boston to Boston, from which city-it is not more than a mile distant at any point. It is traversed by the Boston and Albany railroad, which has five stations within the town; by electric cars upon the Beacon-street Boulevard, running from Boston to the Chestnut Hill Reservoir; by extensions of the Huntington-avenue system, over Washington street to the Reservoir and over Boylston and Cypress streets to Chestnut street; and by transfer connection with the Tremont-street line at Roxbury. Its accessibility to the metropolis of New England has made Brookline the favorite place of residence for wealthy Bostonians, for whom it has peculiar attractions from its low rate of taxation, the superiority of its schools, the number and beauty of its churches, its pure and limitless water supply, its wellshaded and well kept streets, its perfect sewerage, its abundance of room, and especially its popular form of town government, in which every legally qualified citizen has a voice. There are few crowded streets; most of the residences are surrounded by ample grounds, thus insuring the best natural protection to the public health, and the deathrate is consequently low. The public buildings are of modern style, the Town Hall being of rose granite, built at a cost of $250,000, and having a seating capacity of 1200. The Public Library building cost $80,000 and contains upwards of 42,000 volumes. A new High School building has just been erected in the residence center of the town, at a cost of $250,000, and is an enduring manifestation of the educational spirit that controls this splendid municipality.

How shall i feed my baby?

Cow's Milk
Does Not Agree.

Cow's milk does not agree with your baby; would you like to know why it does not? Of course you would, because you yourself are experiencing this difficulty to-day in your own household. The milk looks and tastes nearly the same as mother's milk but why is it that the baby is worried and unhappy, and has the colic when he takes the cow's milk?

Three Reasons for it.

There are three reasons why cow's milk does not agree, and we can make them perfectly plain to you. When we speak of the composition of milk, we must use figures, but we will do so as simply as possible. Suppose you have 100 lbs. of cow's milk: what does it contain? It contains 86 lbs. of water, 5 lbs. of sugar, 4 lbs. of cheese, 4 lbs. of butter, and 1 lb. of salts.

These quantities are in round numbers, and will answer for the present explanation. This is the composition of 100 lbs. of cow's milk. In order that you may intelligently compare the composition of these two substances (mother's milk and cow's milk) we will arrange them in tabular form, thus:

The same of the sa	AND THE PARTY OF T	Marie A.
						Cow	S IVIIIK.	Morne	rs wilk.
Water	•		•	•	•	86	lbs.	87	lbs.
Sugar.	•	•	•	•		5	lbs.	6	lbs.
Cheese		•	•	•	•	4	lbs.	2	lbs.
Butter			•	•	•	4	lbs.	4	lbs.
Salts .	•	•	•	•	•	1	1b. '	1	lb.
						100	lbs.	100	lbs.
	Sugar . Cheese Butter	Sugar Cheese . Butter .	Sugar Cheese Butter	Sugar Cheese Butter	Sugar Cheese Butter		Water	Sugar	Cow's Milk. Mothe Water . . 86 lbs. 87 Sugar . . 5 lbs. 6 Cheese . . 4 lbs. 2 Butter . . 4 lbs. 4 Salts . . 1 lb. 1

Reason. You observe that the cow's milk contains less sugar than the mother's milk. You observe, also, that the cow's milk contains double the quantity of cheese that mother's milk contains. This is the first reason.

Now, cheese is a substance that is excellent for calves, and babies too; it exists in large quantities in cow's milk, which is the calf's natural food, and the proportion of cheese in cow's milk is correctly adapted to the requirements of the calf's stomach; but the baby cannot take so large a quantity of cheese, and that is what disturbs him.

Reason. The second reason is that the cheese in cow's milk is of a different quality from the cheese in mother's milk, and it forms a different substance in the baby's stomach. In the stomach the cheesy portion becomes coagulated and forms a clot; the clots of cheese from mother's milk are soft and flocculent, and make no disturbance in the baby's stomach. The coagulated clot from the cow's milk is hard and tough, and the baby cannot digest it.

ThirdThe third reason is that cow's milk is acid and mother's milk alkaline. If you will obtain a piece of litmus paper, you can readily try this for yourself. If you dip blue litmus paper into cow's milk, the litmus paper will become red; this shows that cow's milk is acid. If you dip red litmus paper into mother's milk, the paper will turn blue; this shows that mother's milk is alkaline. These are the three reasons why cow's milk differs from mother's milk, and therefore disagrees with the baby.

Now, in order to reduce the proportion of cheese, suppose you dilute 100 lbs. of cow's milk with 100 lbs. of water; you will have then, in the 200 lbs., 186 lbs. of water, 5 lbs. of sugar, 4 lbs. cheese, 4 lbs. of butter and 1 lb. of salts. Let us now compare this diluted cow's milk with the mother's milk, and see what the difference is, taking one-half of the 200 lbs. of diluted cow's milk, in order to compare equal quantities; we shall then have:

	10	00 lbs.	100 lbs.
	Cow's I	Iilk, Diluted	Mother's Milk.
Water	9	3 lbs.	87 lbs.
Sugar		$2\frac{1}{2}$ lbs.	6 lbs.
Cheese	• •	2 lbs.	2 lbs.
Butter	• •	2 lbs.	4 lbs.
Salts		$\frac{1}{2}$ lb.	1 lb.
	1	00 lbs.	100 lbs.

Simple Dilution Useless.

Now you will observe that in the diluted cow's milk the cheese is in about the same proportion that it is in the mother's milk, but you have reduced also the portant element in it, namely, the sugar; having less sugar to start with than the mother's milk, the cow's milk diluted contains only 2½ lbs. of sugar in 100 lbs., while the mother's milk contains 6 lbs. of sugar in 100 lbs.

most im-

The Real Now for a Remedy. Remedy. Remedy for these three objections to cow's milk for the baby. It is found by adding Mellin's Food to the diluted cow's milk. The Mellin's Food contains the sugar and salts necessary to bring up the proportions in the diluted cow's milk nearly as they are in the mother's milk. Mellin's Food is alkaline, and it is sufficiently so to neutralize the acidity of the cow's milk. Another important thing that Mellin's Food does is to act upon the cheese of the cow's milk so that when the baby is fed with it the cheese no longer forms in a large, solid clot, but forms in soft flocculent masses, which are readily absorbed by the stomach.

The Right

Way.

Mellin's Food renders cow's milk digestible for the baby and makes it so closely resemble mother's milk. Now we have told you the secret of successful hand-feeding for your baby.

Would you like to know the particular use of the sugar, the butter, the cheese, and the salts, and just what part they play in building up the child's body? You will find it in a little book called "The Care and Feeding of Infants," which contains much of interest to mothers in regard to the feeding of their children. It is published by the Doliber-Goodale Co.,

of Boston, who will send you a copy, free, by mail, if you write for it. To those who have not tried Mellin's Food they will send, free, by mail, a sample bottle sufficient for trial.

Streets, Avenues, Roads, Etc.

Note.—This list gives location of streets, avenues, etc., and shows what other streets run from them, or across them, with the numbers at which they intersect—the numbers being taken from the official plans. The position of the figures in connection with intersecting streets indicates whether they run to the right or left. Although numbers may not appear upon the buildings, the figures given will show the relative locations, if it be kept in mind that allowance is made for a number to every twenty-five feet on all streets of the town, except in the thickly-settled district, where a number is allowed for every $12\frac{1}{2}$ feet. The streets numbered on the scale of $12\frac{1}{2}$ feet are: Aspinwall avenue, from Harvard street to Perry; Boylston street, from Washington to Cypress; Brookline and Pond avenues; Prospect, School and Station streets; Walnut street, from Washington street to Upland road; and Washington street, from Huntington avenue to Holden street. Streets marked with an asterisk (*) are private ways.

THE CHRONICLE,

BROOKLINE, MASS.,

is the ONLY PAPER published in one of the LARGEST TOWNS in the State, the wealth of which is exceeded by no town of equal population in the United States and by only five cities in this rich Commonwealth.

SHREWD ADVERTISERS

always seek mediums that reach people with means to buy their goods. THE CHRONICLE is read by people who know what they

${f WANT}$

and they have the money to pay for what they get. The class of buyers who read THE CHRONICLE comprises men in every known line of business, and the show that the population of Brookline is composed largely of the wealthiest and shrewdest of Boston's business men.

FACTS AND FIGURES
